Local briefs

30-day term suspended

A man who struck a telephone booth occupied by a woman and her baby received a 30-day suspended sentence Thursday in Vanderburgh Superior Court and was ordered to pay court costs.

Arthur Thomas Cohoon, 33, of 2057 Ridgeway Ave., pleaded guilty last week to a misdemeanor charge of criminal recklessness. He had been charged with a felony, but the state refiled the case as a misdemeanor.

Cohoon was arrested following the

May 8 incident at Covert and Weinbach avenues.

The woman, Pauletta Adler, 18, and her baby were not injured.

Grand jury probes death

A county grand jury began its investigation Thursday into last month's shooting death of Regina Harvey, but the probe will not resume until Monday.

Miss Harvey, 24, was found dead Aug. 9 in her home at 1324 S. Governor St. when firefighters went there to fight a fire.

She shared the house with her fiancé, Michael Scott.

Authorities initially believed Miss Harvey died from injuries sustained in the fire. However, an autopsy showed she died from a gunshot wound to her head.

Fund-raiser is planned

Leon "Big Man" Collins, the Republican candidate for the 4th Ward City Council seat, will hold a fund-raiser at the Club Paradise Saturday where he will call for greater job opportunities for minorities in city government.

The event begins at 5 p.m. and will cost $1 per person, Collins said. He will give a brief speech outlining his plan to update the city's affirmative action policy.

Mrs. Smith in hospital

City Councilwoman Betty Knight Smith was admitted to Welborn Hospital Wednesday.

Hospital officials said they couldn't comment on her condition or illness.
